

Naomi has had the privilege to represent PTA at the local, county, state, and national levels, in varying roles over the last ten years. She believes strongly that engaging stakeholders across various facets of the educational spectrum is a critical component of PTA's success and viability, and by extension, victories for our students, families, and school communities. Naomi has a passion for engagement and works to share our value with potential members, developing relationships, and thinking outside the box. She is a self-proclaimed tech nerd, and love sharing strategies and resources that make PTAing Your Way a little bit easier and a lot more fun! As a mother of five children, ranging from 3 to 21 years, Naomi's commitment to children runs deep. She is directly in touch with the issues facing our school communities, having children in each level of school. She enjoys sharing her passions and talents with other child advocates through trainings, workshops, and one-on-one chats. In her spare time, Naomi is an avid musician and opera singer, performing and teaching private lessons throughout the year in her hometown of Tampa, FL.
